Outskirts Press, United States, 2009. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 249 x 173 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .NEW POETRY BOOK RELEASE Colors of a Man: Tribute to African-American Men Colors of a Man: Tribute to African-American Men is poetry about African-American men and the women who love them. In this poetry novel, to truly love someone entails not just sensual love, but emotional love, spiritual love, psychosocial love, and mental/physical love and health/wellness love. African-American men are compared to the great masterpieces paintings. The relationship with our men should mirror that between young lovers. Eagerly awaiting the arrival of their beloved mate, melting under the tender touch, finally succumbing to the moment after hearing sweet serenades of love, longing, and anticipation. The beginning starts with a simple caress, a calming chord that cherishes their contribution to their Community. Family community. Work Community. Church Community. Everyday Community. Shoulder to shoulder, the young couple embrace, Planning for the new life that will blossom out of their love. They will shoulder the responsibility for their offspring together. At the climax, we yell, scream, and celebrate in quiet solitude about these special men in our life. The poem above is entitled Black Night. All of the poems are my own intimate fictionalized reflections about the men in my life and our world community. Says noted new author, Tia Stewart. Tia Stewart is Virginia s newest African-American Poet, and by far one of the most talented poets for the new millennium. Using some of the same southern style and celebrated genres as famous poets, Maya Angelou, Rita Dove, and Nikki Giovanni, she handles tough subjects such as prison incarceration rates for our black youth, domestic violence, interracial love, cougar relationships, media views of African-Americans relationships, black family values, Christian...
